

EXPERTS PAY VISIT TO ICE CREAM PLANT

Delegates to Boards of Health Conference Guests of Management.

REGALE THEMSELVES WITH "VELVET KIND"

Every Detail of Model Establishment Is Shown to the Visitors.

As guests of the Chapin-Sacks Ice Cream Manufacturing Company, about fifty distinguished delegates to the twenty-third annual meeting of the conference of State and Provincial boards of health of North America and their wives went out to this establishment at noon yesterday, and inspected the model plant of the "Velvet Kind." The visitors were driven out from the convention headquarters at the Willard Hotel, in Columbia, and Lozier automobiles, provided for the convenience of the delegates.

The immaculate home of the "Velvet Kind," with buildings of enameled brick and concrete floors, took on a festive air and the doors and secrets of the concern were thrown open to the discerning eyes of the health specialists and prominent physicians, assembled here from all parts of the country. Flowers, banded here and there, lent an added attraction to the scientific establishment. An appetizing buffet lunch, daintily served, put the delegates in the best of humor. The seven immense ice cream machines merrily churned to the strains of an orchestra, making ice cream at a lively pace of 3,000 gallons a day.

Enjoyed Diversion.

Every branch of the industry was laid bare to the critical gaze of the visiting delegates, who seemed to enjoy a diversion from the theoretical conception of purity to a practical and modern process, which eliminates the possibility of disease germ in the manufacture of ice cream. Extreme cleanliness was observed in all stages of production. The cream, upon its arrival, was seen to be tested by inspectors, and a modern pasteurizer insures the destruction of all bacteria. The most modern apparatus was noted by the delegates for vacuuming and thoroughly sterilizing all utensils used. The fact that not a human hand touches the rigid product attracted special attention. The sanitary mixing vats were commented upon and a fully equipped bacteriological laboratory was a special item of favorable comment.

The delegates unhesitatingly expressed their views in regard to the plant, and were all favorably impressed with the sanitary and scientific process of the Chapin-Sacks establishment. Dr. H. M. Bracken, of Minnesota, secretary of the convention, officially gave utterance to the impressions of the delegates when he stated that the plant was perfect and embodied all that is new to science that insures cleanliness and purity.

Attacked by a rat that she had chased into a corner, Ellen Epps, colored, five years old, of 418 New Jersey avenue northwest, was bitten on the left hand yesterday afternoon. Wiseacres Who Are Employed by the District Government Make Timely Suggestions for Advancing Welfare of City

Plumbing Inspector Thinks Children Should Be Taught to Swim.

Knowledge of how to swim and then a place to swim in for the school children of Washington is asked by Plumbing Inspector H. B. Davis, in his annual report to the Commissioners.

Brownings would be made rare occurrences if there were two pools in the schools, one for the white children and one for the colored, he says. And an appropriation to cover that improvement of the plumbing laws, and fines amounting to $197 were assessed against offenders in Police Court.

Unsanitary Building Inspectors Would Have School to Teach Housekeeping.

Because some families seem utterly unable to care for their houses, and allow ash piles to steer water into their rooms and dirt to make the house unhealthful, a school to teach housekeeping is suggested as the remedy by the report of the board for condemnation of unsanitary buildings, submitted to the District Commissioners yesterday.

The members assert that in a row of houses where conditions are the same for all, some families will have no difficulty, while others will so scatter their refuse that the back yard will be raised above the floor, and in bad weather, rain will wash in.

In the report of work done, the inspector shows that 1,341 complaints of defective plumbing were received; forty-three warrants were sworn out for violations of the plumbing laws, and fines amounting to $197 were assessed against offenders in Police Court.

Wharf Commission Wants $2,775,000 to Repair Washington's River Front.

In order to rehabilitate the District wharf property and rearrange it for better results, an appropriation of $2,775,000 is asked by the wharf committee in its annual report to the Commissioners.

The plan to repair and re-erect the buildings and to rent portions now unused, is submitted by J. R. Sutton, harbor master; W. J. Douglas, bridge engineer, and Daniel E. Gorges, chief engineer of the commission.

They suggest the purchase of a strip of wharfage on the Potomac, from Shepherd's Landing to Glebeboro Point; the purchase of another strip between Glebeboro Point and Massachusetts avenue, and the drawing of estimates for the reclamation of the Anacostia river from Massachusetts avenue to the District line.

Ashford Asks That Architects and Builders Be Thoroughly Examined.

That contractors and builders can't plead ignorance of the regulations, Inspector of Buildings Snowden Ashford has asked that the District Commissioners prescribe an examination for all those who draw plans for or superintend the erection of buildings.

He has found many mistakes, he says, in his annual report, that may or may not have been intentional, but which have endangered the lives and property of citizens through faulty construction and the evasion of the department's rules.

With registration and a certificate of ability, he believes that the work could be properly done.

Considering the hazards his deputies take, Inspector Ashford also asks that the pay of each be increased from $1,200 to $1,600 a year.

Chorus Girls "Talked Back" And Officer Arrested Them

They Claimed That "Johnnies" Were Bothering Them and Policeman Just Laughed When They Appealed to Him.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 26.—Misses Bessie Francis and Edith Poole, both of New York, seventeen and nineteen years of age, respectively, members of the chorus of "The Merry Widow" company, now playing at the Academy of Music, were given a ride in the patrol wagon last night and barely escaped spending the night in jail.

The girls are alleged to have abused an officer, whom they claim failed to protect them when they were accosted by "Johnnies" on the street. The young women were on their way to a lunch room after the performance. The officer is alleged to have playfully offered one of them his club with which to protect themselves. The girls then hunted up a telephone and reported the occurrence to headquarters.

The officer states that the girls, when he advised them to go home, said they would be out again tonight. The officer then arrested them on a charge of creating a disturbance.

The young women were shocked when they actually found themselves under arrest. One of them wept when the patrol wagon arrived to take them to the station. They at once telephoned the manager of the company, who came down and bailed them out. This morning they apologized to the officer for their conduct, and the officer, when apprised that he had made a mistake concerning the girls, asked that the case be dismissed.

The girls are both pretty and stylish.

SAYS KAISER SEEKS WAR WITH AMERICA HEBREWS HIT BACK AT CRUEL SULTAN

English Journalist Thinks Brazil Will Provide Cause for Action.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Edgar Wallace thinks Germany is getting ready to fight the United States.

Wallace is an English newspaper man, with a good deal of a reputation as a judge of international politics. It's necessary to mention this, because he puts his prediction in the mouth of an unnamed ambassador, and the interview, being with a "straw man," wouldn't be worth much except that Edgar "stands for it."

It appeared in the last issue of the London Sunday Chronicle. Here is the essence of it:

"War with Germany?" said the ambassador. "Why, yes; somebody has got to be the victim, but I could not imagine it would be England."

"Wars are not always waged for gain. It is only after a war is over, and the peoples of both countries are face to face with an enormous war bill that the politicians point out the gain, just as a huckster, having wheedled a dupe into purchasing a worthless article, points out its marvelous qualities, lest the disgusted purchaser demand his money back."

"What did America gain by her war with Spain, or Turkey with Greece, or France and England with Russia? Why did France and Germany fight for Alsace? Alsace was an Alsace."

"Germany is arming with a definite object, and that object an expansion of territory."

"Against whom is she arming?" inquired Edgar at this point.

"Then he goes on, quoting the "straw ambassador" again:

"America. Have you heard of the Monroe doctrine? Suppose that at some future date Brazil proclaims itself a German colony and demands imperial support and recognition."

"Imagine the indignation at Washington, the passing of diplomatic notes, the dispatch of telegrams, the scare heads of the yellow press and the hasty mobilization of the fleet."

"In 1890 the population of Brazil was roughly 6,250,000. Of this the German population is 1,600,000."

"Germany wants a new colony and she wants it badly. There is nothing she can wrest from England one-half so desirable as the colony already occupied by so many of her subjects. Some day the German eagle will nest officially in Brazil. In the meantime, Germany will go on building Dreadnoughts."

Then he goes on, quoting the "straw ambassador" again:

"The result of Abdul's system was that when he wanted money to fight that he couldn't get it, even with the rack and thumb-screws, from the only people in the country who had any. Abdul fairly wallowed in it. The Hebrews forced it on him. Sometimes he had hard luck, and his followers deserted him, but he always had money."

That's why he was invariably able to reorganize his forces every time Abdul and his French allies shot them to pieces. Finally, he won. He admits he couldn't have done it but for the financial assistance his friends gave him.

Abul's idea was that the Moroccan Hebrews were good people to rob, because they own most of the wealth in the country. And it never occurred to him that they showed little inclination to mix-up in the fighting that kept Morocco in a turmoil from the time he ascended the throne until Mulai pitched him off from it.

He plundered them with both hands. He tortured them when they objected. His Mohammedan subjects were permitted to persecute them, too. The prisoners were always full of them. The authorities never interfered when the rabble attacked them in the streets or looted their shops and houses.

Mulai always used all the influence he had to protect them. When he finally took the warpath against Abdul he showed them all kinds of favor. Within the territory he controlled he granted them special trading privileges. He guarded them against physical violence, and once sent a cavalry force, at considerable inconvenience to himself, to protect a Hebrew caravan which the Azilite troops were trying to intercept as it crossed the desert on its way from the coast into the interior.

The result of Abdul's system was that when he wanted money to fight that he couldn't get it, even with the rack and thumb-screws, from the only people in the country who had any. Abdul fairly wallowed in it. The Hebrews forced it on him. Sometimes he had hard luck, and his followers deserted him, but he always had money."

NEW COUNTRY CLUB HOUSE IS OPENED

Golf Enthusiasts Receive Friends in Caddy House on Virginia Shore.

The informal opening and reception of the Washington Country Club yesterday was well attended by the members, their friends, and those interested in the club, despite the decidedly "Scotch" weather that prevailed.

Congratulations and light refreshments in the cozily appointed rooms of the "caddy house" were the order of the afternoon, and those who saw the clubhouse and the links for the first time expressed their admiration for this beautiful green and the view it gives of the surrounding country.

The club is situated on the Alexandria and Chain Bridge road, on an admirably chosen bit of rising ground near Jewell station, on the Great Falls and Old Dominion railway line. Chevy Chase Club can be discerned in the distance, while the Soldiers' Home, Georgetown University, and the Union Station can be seen plainly beyond the surrounding hills.

The president of the club is J. Taber Johnson. A. Colt Yates is vice president; Frank Upman, secretary, and E. Willey Stearns, treasurer. At present the club has a membership of 100.

The golf course has been laid out only temporarily, and at present consists of nine holes. The starting point is near the "caddy house," and the holes are laid off as follows: First hole, 255 yards; second, 135 yards; third, 450 yards; fourth, 185 yards; fifth, 135 yards; sixth, 230 yards; seventh, 165 yards; eighth, 135 yards; ninth, 350 yards.

All of the short holes are provided with special obstacles or "hazards." The course is what could be termed at present a "sporty" one.

As soon as practicable the members will build a fine, large clubhouse about fifty yards from the location of the "caddy house."

WEEDS MAY THRIVE, SAY COMMISSIONERS

In a communication to the Commissioners, B. H. Warner, of 216 F street northwest, complains of the lack of weeds in front of their houses along F street in front of the Union Station, and in some cases in Massachusetts avenue west of Sixteenth street. Mr. Warner declares that weeds and grass have been allowed to grow to such an extent that a number of parkings are not only unsightly but unhealthful.

Mr. Warner has been informed by the Commissioners that it is the informal opinion of the Corporation Counsel that the maintenance of these parkings cannot be imposed upon property owners by any form of tax.

8 RULERS TO VISIT CAPITAL OF FRANCE

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Paris is to see a veritable procession of monarchs during the next nine months, for between October and June seven Kings and an Emperor are to visit the French capital.

The first royal visitor will be King Haakon, of Norway, followed by the King of Sweden and the King of Denmark. Following these Scandinavian rulers there will be visits of the King of England and the King of Portugal. Last and most important of all will be the Caesar.

Not all of these royal visits will be official or state visits; King Edward, for instance, will merely pass through Paris on his way to Biarritz in the spring.
